Abdul Sattar wins elections by a landslide

Abdul Sattar a 75-year-old former judge, built up an unbeatable score of 12,029,237 votes against 4,521,725 for his nearest rival, Dr. Kamal Hussein of the Awami League. Abdul Sattar claimed victory when he met foreign correspondents at the presidential "This victory is a victory of the great people of this country who are dedicated to the cause of democracy and peace," he said. He vowed to carry on the policies of the late president, killed in an army mutiny, and specified that there would he no change in foreign policy.

"It is now clear : Lat the people have overwhelmingly given their verdict to favor of the presidential system of government," Abdul Sattar said.

"We will continue to play our part in the con-aligned movement, in the Organization of Islamic Conference and in the United Nations," Abdul Sattar said.

He denied allegations by the Awami League that the elections had been rigged. With such a gap between the candidates' vote totals there was no need for rigging, he said. He said one of his major problems would be Bangladesb's population growth and efforts would be made to continue the previous president's bid to double food production. The government must also eradicate illiteracy from Bangladesh, he said. Sheikh Hasina Wazed, president of the league whose active campaigning in favor of Dr. Hussein had belped him become Abdul Sattar's main rival, immediately described the results as a "bluff." At a late night press conference, he said; "it is quite clear from the poll results that it was earlier prepared by the government machinery."

Dr. Hussein, who was earlier tipped to give a close fight to Abdul, told the press confereoce: "this is not at all an election but a conspiracy against the people.

U.S. denies plotting murder of Qaddafi

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AFP) — The White House confirmed Monday that a leading French official and members of the Reagan administration discussed Libya here last February, but denied a report they had talked about a French plan to assassinate Libyan leader Muammar Qaddafi.

The news weekly Time Magazine reported in its latest edition that the government of former French President Valery Giscard d Estaing worked out a plnt to kill Col. Oaddafi and gave details to senior U.S. officials, including National Security Adviser Richard

While House spokesman Larry Speakes said that Allen and two assistant secretaries of state - Chester Crocker (Africa) and Nicholas Veliotes (Middle East) - attended the meeting, during which the situation in (ibya was discussed. Speakes added the meeting was organized while a member of the French government, whom he refused to identify, was passing through Washington.

Contrary to what Time said, the French official, who attended the meeting, did not request either diplomatic or logistic aid from the U.S. for a coup against Col. Oaddafi. Speakes said. The discussion had consisted of a general exchange of views and there had been no question of an anti-Oaddafi plot.

Citing unidentified sources in Washington. Time said that "the French official proposed that the killing be done by a group of Libyan exiles, trained and controlled by the French."

The U.S. would not have been directly implicated in the project and the French were asking Washington to quickly recognize Col. Qaddafi's successor, the magazine said.

The White House never approved the plan, but the Americans accepted that discussions on the matter continue, Time said. It said the plan was dropped when Giscard d'Estaing was defeated in the French presidential elec-tion in May by Socialist Francois Mitterrand.

Edwin Meese, counsellor to U.S. President Ronald Reagan, would neither confirm nor deny the plan. Time says.

Muammar Qaddafi

The magazine quoted U.S. State Department spokesman Dean Fischer as saying: There was no discussion of a covert plot to overthrow Qaddafi, and the French official made no request for logistical or diplomatic assistance from the U.S."

Spokeswoman Kim Hoggard, reached at the White House Sunday night, said, "I don't have any Information on that, I don't know what to tell you,"

Mitterrand government officials insisted last week they had never heard of a plot, Time says, and "the French official has disavowed any role in the plot."

Nicholas Veliotes, Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern and South Asian Affairs, and Chester Crocker, U.S. Assistant Secretary for African Affairs, denied the official made "any formal proposal of covert action" at the meeting they attended, the magazine says. They admitted the discussion involved Lihya, the magazine says.

Suzuki to take new blood in cabinet soon

Minister Zenko Suzuki said Monday he would reshuffle his cabinet soon to belp resolve Japan's persistent trade disputes with

"I will present a new (cabinet) lineup capable of producing concrete measures to handle economy, commerce and trade." he said in an interview with the Japan Broadcast-

Suzuki, 70, said the resbuffle, his first since taking office in mid-1980, would probably take place on Nov. 30.

Reflecting concern here that Japan's trade surplus in the finaocial year ending next March might reach a record $23 billion; Suzuki said be would work for a balanced and free world trade by increasing Japanese imports rather thao restricting exports.

Much of Suzuki's time in office has been dominated by pressure from the United States and Western Europe to reduce Japan's flood of exports and rectify big trade imbal-

Suzuki, however, emphasized in Monday's interview that other advanced nations should redouble efforts to analyze and study the Japanese market and economic structure before they criticized Japao's overall trade.

He said today's scheduled meeting of cabmet economic ministers would still be beld despite the pending reshuffle, and added: "We will discuss (at the meeting)... how we can lower Japan's trade harriers against other countries, if there are any."

A major measure for discussion at the meeting is emergency imports worth about five billion dollars, especially of aircraft and rare and strategic metals.

Government sources said the finance ministry opposes emergency imports. It wants an export surcharge system which would penalize industries with overseas shipments above the national average.

The emergency import plan is backed by the international trade and industry ministry, while the foreign ministry sees problems with both the import and export plans, the sources

After two-hour artillery duel

Tension heightened in South Lebanon

high in southern Lebanon Monday following a two-hour duel between Palestinian commandos and Israeli-backed rightist militiamen fought with mortars and rockets on Sunday. the United Nations and Lebanese provincial authorities reported.

The U.N. information office in Beirut said U.N. peacekeeping forces in southern Lebanon had monitored the exchange between militia aod commando positions that "generated extreme tensions in the region."

The office said field reports from U.N. forces listed mortar rounds fired from militia positions in the direction of Palestinian strongholds, but there was no mention of the type of fire the Palestinians used.

The governor's office in the Mediterranean port of Sidon, provincial capital of southern Lebanoo, said commandos used rockets in blasting militia border positioos and described the exchange as the most serious breach of the South Lebanon ceasefire. The ceasefire was worked out jointly by the United States and the Uoited Nations on July

A spokesman for the governor's office said militia guo positions at Marjeyoun and Qleaa exchanged heavy artillery and rocket fire with commando hilltop positioos overlooking Nabateveh, a market town, about nine kilometers west of Marjeyoun.

The spokesman, who refused to be named on compliance with Lebanese government regulations, said reports compiled by Lebanon's security forces near the scene of bostilities said calm prevailed in the area early Monday as both sides took stock of reported, he added.

The flare-up came just 24 hours after Palestine Liberation Organization Chairman Yasser Arafat ordered a "re-mobilization of Palestinian ranks" to face a major offensive he claimed Israel was preparing to mount in southern Lebanon.

The PLO and border militia forces of renegade Lehanese army Maj. Saad Haddad accused each other of starting Sunday's artillery clash, and the Arabic service of Israel's state radio said power was down in Marjeyoun and Qleaa because of shelling.

Arafat's re-mobilization orders were sent out after Haddad declared he considered the ceasefire in southern Lebanon was terminated by a land mine explosion that killed three of his militiamen last Friday.

Although the PLO denied any involvement in the mine blast at the central sector of Haddad's "free Lebanon" border enclave, Haddad held the commandos responsible and vowed to retaliate "at the appropriate time and venue."

Lebanese Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan joined Arafat in charging that Israel was bracing for a massive military action in southern Lebanoo without regard for U.N. peacekeeping forces that patrol a huffer zone between commando positions and the Israeli frontier.

In an interview with the Abu Dhabi newspaper Al-Ittihad that was reproduced by Beirut newspapers on Monday, Wazzao warned Israel "might undertake a military adventure in South Lebanon to create new tensions in the Middle East prior to upcoming Arab summit conference."

Iran denies presence of KGB agents

LONDON, Nov. 16 (R) - Iran Monday denied a report that Soviet KGB agents had arrived in Tehran to help create an intelligence and security force. A spokesman for the prime minister's office, contacted from London, told Reuters: "This report is not true. We have easily tackled the problem of assassinations and do not need them (Soviet experts) to help us get our information systems going."

Time magazine reported Sunday that a group of 36 Farsi-speaking Soviet KGB experts had arrived in Irao to help set up a secret police force to fight a wave of assassination and bombings launched by leftist opponents of the regime.

Iran, which has lost more than 100 politicians in a violent campaign since the dismissal of former President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr last June, has recently stepped up its efforts to rebuild its intelligence service, shattered after the 1979 revolution.

Israeli troops demolish 4 houses on West Bank

TEL AVIV, Nov. 16 (Agencies) — Israeli troops on the occupied West Bank Monday demolished four houses belonging to Palestinians alleged to bave thrown firebombs at military patrols and to have committed other security offenses, the military command appropried

Three houses in the village of Beit Sahour, southeast of Bethlehem, were dynamited, a military spokesman said. He said their Palestinian residents admitted to throwing fire-bombs at Israeli army patrols earlier this month. The fourth house destroyed was near Ramallah, north of Jerusalem.

Authorities also lifted a curfew imposed on Beit Sabour Saturday night after firebombs were thrown at two Israeli buses. The spokesman said three 17-year-old youths from Beit Sahour were arrested in connection with firebomb attacks on troops on Nov. 1 and Nov. 10. He did not identify them.

West Bank military authorities this month renewed their practice of demolishing the houses of security offenders after not using the punishment for more than a year. On Nov. 2, troops dynamited two houses and sealed a third in Hebron whose occupants were acceuded of stabbing a Jewsih settler in the town's marketplace.

Meanwhile, it was learned Monday that Israel has confiscated 500 hectares of land round the village of Bett Surif in the West Bank for "security reasons." The municipal council has sent protest telegrams to the United Nations.

Another 30 bectares of land round the village of Bani-Naim near Bethlehem has also been expropriated "for military needs."

On Sunday, Israeli military authorities arrested the two leaders of Bir Zeit Palestinian university's student committee and all other members were put under house arrest, Israeli radio reported.

The move came following more than a week of protests in the West Bank sparked by the changeover there from military to Israeli civilian rule. Scores of Najah University students in Nablus started a hunger strike over the weekend because Bir Zeit University had been elosed down on Nov. 4 for two months — the result of its students demonstrating against the administrative changeover.

Begin confirms differences on autonomy talks

TEL AVIV, Nov. 16 (AFP) — Talks of Palestinian autonomy ended last Thursday with Egypt and Israel at odds over East Jerusalem Arabs' right to vote for a Palestinian administrative council and the question of the body's legislative and judiciary rights, Israeli Prime Minister Menabem Begin said Monday.

Begin added, however, that Israel would pull its troops out of the last section it still occupies in the Sinai Peninsula by next April 25. The withdrawal does not depend on the autonomy talks, Israeli radio quoted him as telling a joint parliament defense and foreign affairs committee.

Begin said the Israeli delegation to the Cairo talks opposed Egyptian demands that East Jerusalem's Arabs be granted the right to vote for the administrative council, and that the group be able to pass and enforce laws.

After the talks ended last week, the two sides acknowledged that a "rift" separated the two countries. Conference sources added that Egyptian criticism of Israeli settlements on the West Bank were another factor in the

Explains decision on Chad withdrawal

Libya says U.S. arming Goukouni's rivals

LONDON, Nov. 16 (Agencies) — With the last of its troops pulling out of Chad Monday Libya accused the United States of arming rehels seeking to topple the Chadian government. In a lengthy background document on Libyan policy toward Chad and neighboring Sudan, the Libyans said:

"As a consequence of the American strategy to reassert U.S. control over the region, Washington has exploited the dependence of the Egyptian and Sudanese regimes to launch an offensive against Chad from Sudanese territory."

The document, published in Tripoli Monday by the foreign information department and made available in London, gave the first official explanation of Libya's decision to pull its troops out of Chad after intervening there 11 months ago.

It said the withdrawal was consistent with Libya's policy of not keeping troops in Chad one day longer than requested by the government of President Goukouni Oueddei. The Libyans are to be replaced by an Organization of African Unity (OAU) peace force, the first units of which arrived in the Chad capital, Ndjamena, Sunday.

The Libyan document quoted Muammar Qaddafi as saying he sent troops into Chad after urgent and recurrent appeals from the Chadian government. The Libyan intervention secured victory for President Goukouni in a civil war against rebel forces commanded by former Defense Minister Hissene Habre.

Monday's statement said the Habre forces, now hased in Sudan, were receiving U.S. backing for their attacks against the Goukouni government. It alleged the United States and its Sudanese and Egyptian allies wanted to secure a front along Libya's southern border as part of a plan to destablize Libya.

"The focus of their efforts centers on military support for the Chadian rebel forces of Hissene Habre," the document said. "Habre bas established military hases and launched a subversive military offensive with the support of Americans, Egypt and the Sudan," it added.

The document sought to show that Libya's regional policy was consistent with that of the OAU, of which Qaddafi is due to become chairman next year.

The document indicated Libya no longer considered itself directly invovled in Chad's problems." If there is a border problem, then it is a dispute between Sudan and Chad ... although Libya views with concern and disapproval any conflict in this region, the (Libyan) Jamahiriya is not a primary party to the Chadian-Sudanese conflict."

Meanwhile, in Ndjamena, Chad radio said further Zairean troops were expected in Chad Monday after the arrival Sunday of a 290-strong Zairean vanguard of the pan-African peacekeeping force. Zaire President Mobutti Sese Seko has pledged 750 men to the OAU force for Chad.

PRESIDENT ABDUL SATTAR

Abdul Sattar of the ruling Bangladesh National Party (BNP), acting chief of state since the assassination of Zianz Rahman last May, has won his country's elections and is thus entitled to be the new leader of this poor nation.

Although the opposition candidate Dr. Kamal Hussein of the Awami League has accused the ruling party of rigging the elections, the results indicate a free contest, proven by the fact that Hussein pulled over 4.5 million votes against Abdul Sattar's 12 million. Rigged elections would have given Abdul Sattar 99 percent of the total vote as has been the oorm in many Third World countries. Incumbent leaders in many Third World countries are seldom satisfied with less that such

A head of state in the Third World was reported to have been deeply dismayed that his re-election results showed that fewer than ten thousand persons had voted against him while nearly 11 million others had given him their confidence. He wanted a 100 percent mandate and would have slept a lot better if he had received even a little more than that.

With this experience of fantastic and fanciful results in Third World elections, with only a few exceptions, it is only right to say that the Bangladesh elections have been a rarity of fairness and the opposition party should be heartened by the good turnout and its excellent showing in the contest. It augurs well for the future that if the League wins greater popularity through a responsible and patriotic program of opposition it will not be thwarted from winning the next election through rigging or corruption.

Abdul Sattar's task is not going to be easy. The country is beset with problems, and even Ziaur Rahman's charismatie appeal did not begin to scratch the surface of poverty and underdevelopment. The country has been placed on the list of the world's least developed states and is arguably the poorest in the world so that Abdul Sattar's victory does not make him the luckiest man in the country hut, instead, should bring him the sincere cooperation of the whole nation, including the opposition.

Saudi Arabian press review The chance of a unanimous and diplomatic strategy at the endorsement of the Saudi Arabian peace plan at the upcoming Arab summit meeting in Fez, Morocco. as a major initiative for realizing the aspirations and fateful causes of the Arabs figured for editorial comments in Monday's newspap-

Al-Bilad ooted that there is a bright chance that the Arab leaders at the Fez summit will show -their solidarity by accepting the · principles of the Kingdom's peace -'plan for formulating joint ioterna-- tional diplomatic moves aimed at realizing common Arab goals_

"The eight-point formula will provide prominent guidelines relating to the issue and will demonstrate the Arah people's desire for peace based on justice from a positioo of strength rather than a posi-...tion of surrender." the paper said.

. Hailing the dedicated role of the Kingdom in realizing Arab unity. Al - Javirah hoped the Arah leaders at the Fez summit will commit themselves to a unanimous acceptance of the Kiogdom's plan which will help achieve a just and durable peace in the area.

. Okaz called for reconciliation and healing of Arab rifts in order to achieve Arab solidarity and unity. The paper advised the Arab states to work out their political Arab summit and formulate measures to counter the threats to the region from Zionists, East or West by declaring their adherence to the principles enshrined in the Arab League's charters.

The paper said Arab differences should not lead to hostilities and severing of diplomatic and economic ties.

"The Arabs should reject any foreign ioterveotioo or pacts aod totally ahandon alien theories and declare their dedicated commitment to the Arah and Islamic heritage and causes," Okaz said.

The paper called for devising a fair solution to put an immediate end to the Iraq-Iran conflict in accordance with the concept of Islamic solidarity and unity.

Dealing with the basic principles of Saudi Arabia's foreign policy, Al -Madinak ooted the honest commitment of the Kingdom's policy to serve Islam, propagate Islamic teachings in the world and defend Muslims who are facing oppression and injustice. "Saudi Arabia will oever permit anybody to harm the interest of Muslims anywhere and will never establish normal relations with any state which publicly and proudly embarks on killing of Muslims," the paper said. Arab panel determined to restore Lebanon peace

By Patrick Worsnip

Despite the stubborn inflexibility of the many conflicting parties in Lehanon, Arab League mediators are sticking doggedly to their task of trying to bring peace to a country where a civil war six years ago has never really ended. Their five-month-old efforts have brought a measure of tranquility to Lebanon's three million people, hut a political solution still looks a long way off.

At its latest meeting in Beirut on Nov. 7 the so-called four-party Arab Follow-Up Committee announced measures for banning illegal arms imports brought in by sea, and for improving security in the Lebanese capital. But the measurea have not so far been put into effect and it now seems unlikely that they will be before the Arab summit conference opening in Fez, Morocco, on Nov. 25.

Lebanon has won a promise that its problems will be debated at the first session of the summit. But analysts here are doubtful about an early solution to the intricate Lebanese problem.

Furthermore, the Lebanese government itself has already been distracted by rising tension in the south, where a four-month-old truce between Israel and Palestinian commandos looks threatened by a reported military buildup by both sides. Lebanese President Elias Sarkis is expected to repeat at the summit Beirut's long-standing appeal for a common Arah strategy against Israel, to save the Palestinian commandos. Lebanon has bitterly complained that the idea of a joint strategy has so far received only lip-service from other Arab states.

Nevertheless, the summit will enable leaders of states represented on the Lebanon committee -Saudi Arahia, Kuwait, and Syria — as well as the Arab League Secretariat, to get together informally to try to push the detente process along. The committee was originally set up after the 1975-76 Lebanese civil war, but was revived last June after two months of bitter fighting in Beirut and the east Lebanese town of Zahle.

The fighting basically pitted the right-wing Phalangist Party against the all-Syrian Arab Deterrent Force (ADF) - serving in Lebanon since the civil war under Arab League mandate - and nationalist Lebanese groups.

The committee arranged a ceasefire in Beirut which has more or less held since early June, and a month later it ended fighting in Zahle between Phalangist militiamen inside the town and ADF troops besieging it. Moreover, it persuaded Phalangist militia commander Bashir Gemayel to hand President Sarkis a still unpublished pledge to end dealings with Israel — cooperation which Syria said was the main obstacle to peace in Lebanon.

Syria then oemanded that, to give substance to this pledge, an end must be put to the inflox of they control north of Beirut. The committee decided in September to set up a watchdog body to inspect all Lehanese ports to ensure that arms imports reached no one except the Lehanese government. It also agreed on a plan to pacify roughly the northern third of the notorious "greeo line" separating east and west Beirut, by withdrawing the combatants on both sides. If implemented, the measure could hring peace to the ravaged former commerical center, hitherto the scene of constant shooting. It would also improve communications between east and west Beirut, presently linked by only three crossing points. Delegates of the committee are currently contacting the parties in Lebanon to try and put its decisions into effect but initial reactions have not been encouraging. One likely sticking point is the composition of the body to patrol the ports, with the Phalangists certain to oppose any effective Syrian presence in ports they control.

The urgent need for some sort of stability is underlined as next year's presidencial elections loom closer. But many Lebanese politicians believe ouly makeshift solutions are possible for Lebanon until an overall Middle East settlement is reached.

votes, five of them by less than 300. Most of these extremely marginal seats are in rural or semi-rural areas, ones in which the prime minister's toughtalking policy on the right of New Zealanders to play sport with whom they choose struck a strong and sympathetic cbord. At the opening of the campaign early this month, polls showed National holding 44.4 percent of the vote, Labor 34.7 and Social Credit 20.4. If the polls are right the government is virtually certain of reelection to a third three-year term of office. Economics are a key part in the campagin. Muldoon and his party want to use New Zealand's large on and-off shore natural gas resources. A synthetic petrol plant, metbanol production, petrochemical industries and gas liquefication facilities are envisaged. An expansion of the small steel industry, based on huge iron sand deposits, is planned as well as a second aluminum smelter.

Labor argues that the industrialization program is too ambitious, would roh the farming sector of development capital and place the country in hock to overseas creditors. It wants a more halanced growth program with less emphasis on industrial plant and more on expansion of traditional farming industries and hornculcure.

The prime minister's record in office suggests that his domestic reputatioo as a sound and vigorous financial administrator is bardly justified. Inflatioo is running at about 15 percent this year, and bank economists predict a rate of 20 percent for next year. Muldoon blames the surge in international oil prices in 1978-79.

But although this is met with skepticism in leading financial-institutions - who blame an overahundant money supply for the high inflation rate. - the prime minister's confident tone and willingness to fiercely put down opponents in argument seem to have impressed the electorate.

Labor leader Bill Rowling was cheered at an electoral rally when he declared that leadership did oot carry with it a license to make a fool of the country abroad. He plans to stick with this theme. Both Rowling and Muldoon are likely to be dumped as party leaders should they be loser at the end of the month.

Muldoon leads an essentially free market oriented party hut he has dragged it to an uneasy centrist position, prohably a Socialist ranking hy West European standards.

During the past two weeks Rowling bas looked in top form in television appearances. His party seema better organized than for many years. Labor officials argue that a 10 percent lag in polls two weeks before voting day can be overcome if the electorate can be convinced Rowling would be a strong leader.

On foreign affairs, National would contribute to the Sinai peace force, but Labor hedges. National would welcome U.S. nuclear-powered warships at New Zealand ports, Labor would not. National is all the way with ANZUS (the tripartite defense pact linking America, Australia and New Zealand), Labor wants to review it. Both parties appear to want closer-economic ties with Australia. Odds favor a Muldoon victory, not least because he tunes his domestic politicking to what the voter wants to hear rather than what many of his opponents think the voter ought to hear. (ONS)

bargaining on Superpowers set for tough

By Sidney Weiland

LONDON -Two weeks before the start of a new round of armatalks, U.S. and Soviet negotiators are still wide apart on what exactly they intend to talk about. Western defense analysts say months may he spent wrangling over definitions before the two sides can get down to apecifics.

The attempt to limit medium-range nuclear missiles in Europe raises the most complex range of problems faced by the superpowers in 12 years of intermittent arms control talks. Despite five months of preliminary cootacts, there will be no agreed ground rules when American and Soviet experts meet in Geneva on Nov. 30. Both sides expect a negotiating marathon.

While they agree the fire arms talks hetween the Reagan administration and Moscow should deal only with medium-range weapons, they differ widely on what types should he discussed. The first hurdle will be to reach agreement on this. The talks begin against a backdrop of rising fear in Western Europe over the risks of ouclear war. unease over conflicting signals from Washington, and niggling strains among NATO allies.

With European NATO governments increasiogly worried over anti-nuclear protest movements, U.S. diplomats say they expect continuing pressure within the alliance to get results. Although the talks involve only the United States on the Western side. U.S. planners have met frequently with other NATO officials to coordinate alliance tactics. Another meeting will be held at NATO headquarters in Brussels before the talks start.

U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig has said consultations so far have been of "unprecedented intensity." For the first time in U.S.-Soviet arms talks. Washington's European allies are directly affected. Soviet mid-range SS-20 missiles are already targeted on Western Europe, and 572 matching U.S. warheads are to be stationed there, starting late in 1983.

West Germany led a long European battle before the Reagan administration fixed a date for the negotiations, as provided for in a two-track decision two years ago when NATO agreed to upgrade its European defenses with new U.S. missiles. Ironically, the European were the first to press for U.S. Cruise and Pershing-2 missiles to be based in Western Europe to counter what was seen as a mounting threat from the SS-20s.

Now, some Europeans would prefer to delay in hopes that mutual cuts can be agreed relatively soon with Moscow, making at least some of the U.S. deployments unnecessary. Originally, European leaders argued the new bases would guarantee a U.S. defense commitment if Western Europe was

Some Europeans are now worrying their countries may be devastated if the United States and the Soviet Union chose to fight a limited nuclear war only in Europe. President Reagan's acknowledgement last month that a limited conflict was possible, without necessarily involving the superpowers, forced the White House to assure anxious Europeans there was no risk they would be left to fight alone.

West Europeao concern was heightened by confusion over whether NATO planning included the possibility of a nuclear "warning shot' to deter a Soviet conventional attack in Europe. Haig said such a contingency plan existed, U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger denied it, and Reagan conceded last week that "there seems to be some confusion."

European officials believe the apparent disarray, plus reports of high-level infighting in Washington, plays into the hands of anti-nuclear protesters who have launched a Europe-wide campaign against the 1979 NATO plan to deploy U.S. missiles.

Denis Healey, deputy leader of Britain's Labor Party, said Reagan's ambiguity about nuclear warfare was "worth a million votes to the unilateral (disarmament) movement in Europe."

NATO Secretary General Joseph Luns will discuss the anti-nuclear protests in Washington this week, and will tell U.S. officials that American atalements have been unhelpful in NATO efforts to generate public support for the missile deploy-

In Geneva, U.S. chief negotiator Paul Nitze will seek a tradeoff - the reduction of Moscow's arsenal of SS-20s and other European theater nuclear missiles in exchange for fewer U.S. Cruises and Pershings. NATO officials say be will seek to limit not only the triple warbead, mobile SS-20s targeted against Western Europe but also those aimed at China, as well as older SS-4s and SS-5s.

Although the SS-20s have insufficient range to hit the United States, they can wipe out targets across Western Europe, from Iceland to sonthern Italy and Portugal.

Already Moscow has hinted it will seek deep cuts in Western missiles which NATO says should not be counted among European-based medium-range

NATO officials believe Soviet negotiator Yuli Kvitsinsky will try to bargain Soviet cuts not only against Cruises and Pershings but also against British and French missiles and U.S. "forward-hased systems." These : include U.S. F-111 bombers hased in Britain and sea missiles on ships and submarines operatiog close to European shores. If Moscow tries to include these weapons in the Geneva bargaining, U.S. negotiators are expected to call for inclusion also of long-range Soviet Backfire bombers and newly-deployed SS-22s and SS-23s which can hit parts of Northern Europe.

Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev, in an interview two weeks ago, said the Soviet Union had 975 European mid-raoge missile launchers against 986 deployed by the West. His elaim of "approximate parity" is strongly contested by U.S. and other NATO experts who say his count of Soviet missiles is highly selective and leaves out older-type weapons and others that could be quickly moved to face

According to Western estimates, two-thirds of the SS-20s based in the Soviet Union are pointed at Western Europe. The rest are aimed at China and Japan. With three independently targetable warheads each, this represents about 540 warheads. Western experts say SS-20s are still being deployed at the rate of roughly one every five days.

The West also counts about 350- SS-4s and SS-5s, about 45 Backfires and 350 missile-carrying Badger and Blinder aircraft, with a total of about 1,700 warheads aimed at Western Europe.

The Geneva meeting will be unable to discuss actual cuts until agreement is reached on a list of weapons to he tackled. NATO officials say U.S. negotiators will offer the Soviet Union a range of options, starting with a "zero option" that calls for the dismantling of all SS-20s in exchange for a halt to U.S. deployment plans. This has already been ruled out by Brezhnev, who has offered only to scale down SS-20 emplacements even if the whole five-year program to station U.S. warheads in five West European countries is canceled.

NATO has rejected in advance a Soviet proposal that warhead stocks should he frozen at present levels while negotiations cootinue. With the new U.S. missiles still to be deployed, the West says a freeze would be meaningless.

Brezhnev is expected to try to exploit antinuclear sentiment on a visit to Bono starting Nov. 22. Opposition to the missiles is among the most vocal in West Germany.

NATO is worried that the anti-ouclear movement may grow to a poiot where government leaders find it politically hazardous even to begin preparing the planned missile bases. U.S. diplomats say any such wavering would undercut their position in Geneva, and that Moscow may try to spin out the talks in hopes the missile program will be scuttled.

The Geneva talks are separate from long-delayed U.S.-Soviet strategic arms talks (SALT). The U.S. administration has frozeo the 1979 SALT-II treaty and says it hopes to launch a new series of SALT talks with Moscow next February or March. SALT prospects and progress in the missile talks will bereviewed by Haig and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Geneva in January, at their second meeting in four months.(R)

Australian aborigines, 'settlers' in conflict

By William Branigin

ALICE SPRINGS, Australia (WP) -Every day, the aborigines troop into this central Australian town from their camps and settlements on its outskirts. Unemployed, some wander the streets looking for something to do. Others loiter around aboriginal aid offices. Many drift down to the sandy bed of the todd river and sit around in small.

Cooceroed about rising violent crime and anxious to develop the town as the white community of Alice Springs generally wants the aborigines to stay away. New territorial legislation has been proposed to craek down oo public loitering and allow courts to hanish offenders to their "home communities."

Says aboriginal leader John Liddle, "the legislation is totally aimed at getting all these horrible blacks off the streets."

The dispute is but one aspect of the friction that puts this rambunctions, pioneer town on the front lines of a racial and cultural conflict. betweeo Australia's original inhabitants and its European settlers.

As a result of that conflict, aboriginal leaders say, Australia's aborigines today suffer from some of the world's worst social, ecocomic and health problems. Consider these findings:

Aborigines have the highest imprisonment rate of any minority in the world, according to the Australian Institute of Criminology.

 Government figures show an aboriginal unemployment rate of 37 percent, six times higher than that of the general work force. Young aborigines are worst affected, with 47 perecot of aborigines under age 25 unemployed.

-Only about 2 percent of aboriginal children currectly go beyond secondary school, compared with 24 percent of white children. According to 1971 census figures. 25 percent of the aboriginal population had never attended school and 43 perceot never weot beyond primary education. There are oow only six aboriginal lawyers in Australia, and no doctors or dentists.

 Health statistics show that aborigines suffer from two of the world's highest rates of leprosy and trachoma. Tuherculosis, ear disease, hronehitis aod pocumonia also are rampaot. Infant mortality has been put at three times the rate of nonaborigines. In the state of New South Wales life expectancy for adult aborigines is about 52 years, 20 years less than for nonaborigines.

"Nothing shows more clearly the total neglect of aboriginal people and the racial discrimination against them by white Australian society than the alarming health cooditions of aboriginal people," said a World Council of Chorches report published in fn Canberra, a government spokesman said the aborigines' plight resulted from "one civilization overwhelming a culture." He added, "there's a tremendous feeling of guilt about it in the country."

fn an interview in Melbourne, the minister for aboriginal affairs, Sen. Peter Baune, acknowledged a "series of underlying disadvantages in aboriginal life," hut insisted that marked improvements have been made in many areas. He said he believed the report "overstated the blemishes."

Baome, who is white, also said he did not think racism was a "critical problem" in Australia, a view that aboriginal groups and their supporters vigorously dispute. They point to sentiments such as those expressed in a recent television interview by mining magnate Lang Hancock, one of Australia's richest men. He said that full-blooded aborigines should be moved to an area in western Australia and "half-castes" should be sterilized. Hancock's remarks unleashed a torrent of condemnation, but one letter published afterward suggested that "the great silent majority of this country bas a sneaking sympathy for his views. ...

In Africe Springs, a young cab driver explamed the problem this way: "A lot of people here are against the aborigines because they only see the ones who come to the city, the ooes rejected by their tribes. They just come

At the Yarreoyty-Arltere Aborigioal Campon the edge of town, Wenteo Rohuntia agreed that this sort of thing was a problem. Rnhuntja, the local leader of the Aranda tribe said "they work today and yoo see nothing tomorrow."

In fact, according to a white adviser, of about 1,000 aborigines living in camps such as this one around Alice Springs, about 40 work full-time and 40 part-time, most of them for aboriginal aid groups.

Clifford Inkimala, who lives in a tin shed in the camp with his wife and three children, said his last joh was more than five years ago. Now he collects unemployment benefits, which the aborigines call "siddown mooey," amounting to about $112 every two weeks. As he spoke, one of his children played oearby with a dead mouse.

Despite the efforts of the government and activist groups, the basic cooffict between aboriginal and white society seems to defy solution. On the one hand, primitive tribal people have suffered greatly from a massive, ofteo hrutal assault on their culture 200 years ago. On the other, that culture stresses a life style and values incompatible with the progress that has made Australia ooe of the world's richest countries.

For many aborigines, it is not only a question of whether they can adapt to a modern industrialized society, but also whether they should. Those who live in "fringe camps" like Yarrenyty-Arltere are caught between the two worlds.

Although apparently divided on that question by the very facts of where and how they live, aborigines today seem to make common cause oo one overriding concern: Land

One of the latest issues has been ownership of the area's prime tourist attraction, the Ayer's Rock National Park. Site of the world's largest free-standing rock - called here "one of the oatural wonders of the world" for the way it changes color from dawn to dusk — the park, 286 miles southwest of Alice Springs, is run by the federal government.

Earlier this month, two local aboriginal land councils said the park should be returned to its "traditional owners," who would then lease it to "an appropriate authority" for use as a park but retain a major role in its management.

"Blacks want rock," said the front-page headline on the story in the Alice Springs Centralian Advocate.

The dispute has oot been the only source of friction lately. A policeman is currently on trial here for killing an aborigine during a brawl and authorities are investigating ao incident in March in which two aborigines died of strychnine poisoning. Numerous other deaths have given Alice Springs the reputation of Australia's murder capital. According to residents, the town of 17,000 people has the highest murder rate per capita of any major town in the country. with most of the killings stemming from disputes between aborigines.

Sitting in a Washingtoo office, the tall, pale man, whose concern and humor are barely hidden behind his gold-rimmed glasses, savors the success of an occupation in which the odds of winning are brutally low. He hasexperienced the trappings of world power as Deomark's former foreign minister and prime minister. Now he mostly sees the pit of world misery. Over the last 30 years the agency he has headed since 1977 has resettled 25 million refugees, and the numbers keep growing. Yet Hartling's determination is continually reinspired by the human spirit of that young man from Vietnam and thousands of others.

This fall Hartling, 66, was in Pakistan visiting the Afghan refugees. In the desert where they were camped there was oothing hut rows of tents and unflagging patience. "They have only one thing in their minds, to go hack, when the possibility comes, to go hack in dignity. There the impression was of a prond people, very dignified," says Hartling. Hartling, who also establishes refugee policy with both the original and host countries, dispassiooately recreates his field work, careful to walk the thin wire between the tragic reality and sensationalism, the work and his own passion. "Sometimes there are impressions that go to the heart, impossible to forget what you have seen," says Hartling. "If yoo are depressed that refugees still are coming, you cannot do the job. I sometimes say the picture is just like a hospital. The doctors see patients coming, sick people coming, if yoo say, "I give up, more sick people are coming,' it's hopeless. But no, if you help, more people are coming the next day, you can help some."

When Hartling visited a settlement in southern China this fall, his step was lighter. China had settled most of the Vietnamese refugees in state farms, but the 10,000 fishermen preferred a port location, so one was refurbished.

"One of the captains had a family of 13 people and they lived in one boat. It was 6 by 3 meters. That was the space. Now, be said, 'they gave me a flat with three bedrooms and one sitting room. The sitting room is more space than before," says Hartling.

Now in its 30th year, the agency concentrates on the first phase of the refugecproblems, saving the displaced from starvation and homelessness. The long-range goal is repatriation or integration in other countries. In the last few years, 200,000 Burmese have returned from Bangladesh. 100,000 Nicaraguans from Costa Rica and Honduras, and 150,000 Zairans from Angola. "What we want to do is go out of business," says Hartling flatly.

Though the estimates go as high as 18 million, the agency deals with the 10 million refugees who have been displaced hy natural and social opheavals, and who have registered with the agency. Right now, the ageocy is helping 250,000 southeast Asian refugees in Thailand, 1.7 million Afghan refugees in Pakistan, 700,000 Ethiopians in Somalia, and 500,000 refugees from various Africao states in Sudan. That oumber is only a small indication of the size of the problem - including 5 million refugees on the Africao continent, and the latest flood of hundreds of thousands of Salvadorans in Central America. The agency does not even work with some problem areas, like Haiti, until a bost government invites its participation.

Hartling's own involvement with refugee programs started 25 years ago when he was a founding father of the refugee council of a Danish relief organization. The impetus had beeo the Palestinian refugees in Jordan. Then, as now, he enjoyed the small details as well as the larger philosophical questions.

After persuading drug firms to donate medicine that was outdated hut still effective, he went to the shipping firms." I said, 'you are going out anyway. Why not take a few cases? We are not going to pay for it. That was Hartling feels that the Nobel Prize, which his agency also won in 1954 for its resettlement of European refugees, will again focus attention on the refugee problems, encourage other humanitarian organizations to participate and ease the task of fund-raising -$365 million this year.

Hartling turns to the small encounters for his inspiration — when "some of the children begin to be naughty, which is a very good sign," he says, laughing. On his visit to Zimbabwe, he stopped by the office of the minister of interior, one of the 660,000 Zimhabweans he had helped return to his homeland. "He said to me: 'Do yoo remember where we met the last time, it was in Mozambique, in the camp.' He laughed," says Hartling. "When f came out of his office, in front of his door there was a typist and she also said, 'f saw you

LONDON, Nov. 16 (R) — West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt was quoted Mooday as saying he would attempt next week to bring about a meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Leonid

Armenian group threatens French

PARIS, Nov. 16 (AFP) - Armenian militants appear to have declared war oo

French authorities were Monday snarled into the Turco-Armenian conflict with the arrest of four Armenian militants who attacked the Turkish consulate here last September and the arrest last Wednesday of a suspected Armenian terrorist "Dimitriu Gargiu."

A group calling itself "Orly," which has already claimed responsibility for the recent anti-French bomb attacks in Beirut, Sunday demanded the release of Giorgiu, otherwise it said "French diplomats around the world will be targets."

As a result of a telephoned threat to the Beirut office of Reuters news agency that an Air France airliner would be blown up, an emergency alert was declared Sunday night for all France flights.

The situation has not been eased by the strange way that French authorities have handled Giorgiu, a 32-year-old man travelling with a false Cypriot passport who was arrested as he was about to board a Middle East Airlines flight to Beirut.

A court decided to release him for "reasons of expediency" a decision taken at a high state level — but this was reversed at the last minute and he is being held in prison. Police have discovered an ominous fact about his

Part of the house had been ransacked and a stereo system stolen, police said. The consul's official car was also missing but was found after police sealed off the area and launebed a search assisted by a helicopter.

Police said there was nothing so far to suggest a political motive. But they said the way Giannaris had been tied up was similar to the method used in the killing of a 41-yearold Sydney man a month ago.

Representatives of Sydney's large Greek community said Gainnaris, a bachelor from Athens, was reserved but well-liked and apparently had no enemies. He had been posted in Sydney since 1979.

The death came nearly a year after the assassination in Sydney of the Turkish consul general and his bodyguard, who were shot by two masked men as they drove to work from an area ocar Giannaris' home. India welcomes Cuban envoy despite charge

NEW DELHI, Nov. 16 (AP) — India Monday accepted the credentials of Cuba's new ambassador despite a pending lawsuit charging that the envoy was a secret agent for the Soviet Union in Ethiopia.

President Neelam Sanjiva Reddy welcomed Ambassador Jose Perez Novoa to India and said in a statement that "India and Cuba have worked together closely in the cause of world peace and greater international coopcration in various world forums, including in the nonaligned movement."

Presenting his credentials, Perez Novoa said the "fruitful bilateral ties" between India and Cuba and their participation in the nonaligned movement proved that the two countries' relations are "indestructible."

The Delhi high court has fixed Thursday for a ruling on a petition filed by an opposition lawyer, seeking to have Perez Novoa harred from India. In his suit, the lawyer said the ambassador was expelled from Ethiopia in 1978 for involvement in a plot to overthrow the Ethiopian government on behalf of the Soviet KGB.

Hong Kong subway 'purified' by Chinese

Eyewitnesses insisted they saw a woman dressed in red leap in front of a train last week, but officials said no suicide could have taken place because no body was found. They said the woman probably fell between the rails and then climbed up unhurt and disappeared in the excitement.

Exorcists were nonetheless called in after Chinese langauge newspapers theorized that the woman was the "ghost" of a previous successful suicide. And in deference to traditional Chinese beliefs, a ceremony to "purify" the modern subway station was held there Monday.

The acknowledged receipt of the money by Allen, President Ronald Reagan's chief national security adviser, is under investigation by the U.S. Justice Department, The White House announced the payment Friday after the newspaper Mainicki Shimbun published a story saying Tokyo police bad investigated payment to an unidentified top White House official.

Allen said be bad not solicited the money, hut had "intercepted" it, locked it in a safe rather than cause embarrassment to the reporters or Mrs. Reagan, and forgotten it until it was discovered by others.

Hinckley tries to kill himself in military cell

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) - John W. Hinckley Jr., awaiting trial on charges of attempting to assassinate President Ronald Reagan, tried to hang himself in a military prison Sunday but was cut down by U.S. marshals, the Justice Department said.

Department spokesman Tom Decair said the 26-year-old Hinckley was taken to the hospital at Fort Meade, Maryland, where he had been confined, and was described Sunday night as in sausfactory condition. Decair said Hinkley would be held at the base hospital overnight for observation.

Asked if Hinckley was actually banging for any period of time, Decair said be was, but did not know how long. "He has no serious injury of any kind." Hinckley was "semiconscious" when be arrived at the base hospital emergency room. Decair said.

It was the second time since Hinckley's arrest March 30 that he has made an apparent attempt to harm himself. On May 27, while jailed in Butner, North Carolina, Hinckley took an overdose of tylenol, an aspirin subsntute, and was taken to the prison infirmary.

Decair said Sunday's incident occurred at 4:55 p.m. (2155 GMT), when Hinckley tried to bang himself with an article of clothing."

Hinckley used a rolled-up jacket which he wrapped around a bar in the outside window of bis cell, Decair said. Marsbals saw what Hinekley was doing when he began and immediately tried to stop him but could not get into the cell because the door lock would not work, according to Decair.

The marshals reached into the cell from an exercise yard outside to cut Hinckley down. the spokesman said. Decair said marsbals will investigate the incident, including checking whether Hinckley may have disabled the Hinckley was confined in a single cell under the observation of U.S. marshals who have watched him around the clock since the May 27 incident. "It was because he was under 24-hour watch that the attempt was unsuccessful," Decair said.

Hinckley is scheduled to go on trial Jan. 4 in U.S. District Court in Washington on a 13-count federal indictment charging him with attempted assassination of Reagan and with wounding Reagan, a secret service agent, a Washington policeman and White House press secretary James Brady. Asked if the incident would delay or affect the trial, Decair said he did not think it would.

An extensive FBI investigation has concluded that Hinckley, who was arrested moments after the shooting outside the Washington Hilton Hotel, acted alone. Hinckley has pleaded innocent.

Hints at tax hike

Reagan aide sees jobless hit 9%

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16 (AP) - U.S. unemployment may return to a post-World War II peak of 9 percent before President Ronald Reagan's policies start working to produce vigorous economic growth, the chairman of the president's council of economic advisers has said.

The official, Murray Weidenbaum, also indicated the administration may have to consider new tax increases for 1983 and 1984 to limit swelling budget deficits.

Weidendaum declared his total confidence in the Reagan economic program when asked about the skepticism expressed by Budget Director David A. Stockman in a magazine article released last week.

Stockman submitted his resignation to the president because of those remarks, but Reagan decided to keep him nn the jnb after Stockman expressed total faith in Reagan's Weidenbaum acknowledged Sunday he held some of the same reservations that Stockman expressed in the magazine article, which was based on a series of interviews over the past 11 months. He said that in retrospect, earlier economic forecasts by the administration were "optimistic." He suggested that new savings in the defense budget and new tax increases should be considered in dealing with budget deficits, and that Reagan's tax cuts must be bolstered by budget cuts for his program in work.

Referring to democrats in the U.S. Congress expressing doubts about the credibility nf President Ronald Reagan's economic program and accusing Budget Director David Stockman of deceiving Congress and the administration, Weidenbaum said Reagan should stick to his original plans for large spending and tax cuts to revive the economy.

Weidenbaum, who was interviewed on CBS network's "Face the Nation," said Reagan's program "is already working," an apparent reference to a falling inflation rate.

"An unfortunate consequence of winding down the inflation that had beset the econn my for decades is the current recession, and, yes, I expect the current unemployment rate unfortunately to continue to rise during the recession... well above g percent," he said in his most bearish forecast yet.

Asked if the jobless rate could climb to the 9 percent peak of the 1975 recession, he replied: "It could, conceivably."

Unemployment sorged from a summertime level of 7.3 percent to 8 percent in October, leaving 8.5 million Americans out of work, A rise to 9 percent would mean another 1 million people unemplayed.

The only other time unemployment has been so high was when the nation was pulling out of the Great Depression of the 1930s.

Rep. James R. Jones, Democrat Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said on NBC's "Meet the Press" that the Reagan economic program is "a Rude Goldberg mixture' whose parts are "inconsistent and therefore noworkable."

The congressman said Democrats will review the results of the president's econnmic policies early next year and, if current unfavorable signs continue, will propose an alternative that probably will include delaying the third step of Reagan's three-year tax cnt. The main goal, Jnnes said, is to correct the underlying causes of inflation.

Although Weidenbaum's unemployment forecast was gloomier than any he has issued in recent weeks, the White House economics adviser stressed he still believes "very strongly...that the second half of 1982 will not only be a period of expansion but one of the most vigorous periods of economic growth in recent years."

"A year from now, we should be looking at a much stronger economy and one with much less inflation," be said, predicting that inflation would average "g percent or less' in 1982. The inflation rate was 12.4 percent in 1980 and is expected to be around 10 percent this year.

A number of Senate Republicans and Stockman have been pressing in recent weeks for new sources of tax revenues to narrow deepending budget deficits resulting from a weakening economy and the record cut in income-tax rates that Reagan won from Congress this year.

Weidenbanm said the current fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, is not the time for tax increases, given the recession and the need for tax cuts to stimulate a recovery.

Brazil faces uphill task to set economy right

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 16 (R) - Brazil is struggling to emerge from nne nf its deepest economic crisis ever.

In advance of major elections planned for next year, the country is grappling with inflation running at over 100 percent, foreign debt that is fast approaching $60 billion and remnrselessly rising unemployment.

The rapid growth of the 1970's bas run out nf steam and some government officials say the economy, once noted for its rapid expansion, may not grow at all this year.

Antonio Delfim Netto, the planning minister and economic nverlord, shows no sign nf abandoning a basic tight-money policy apart from moves to create jobs and stimulate certain sectors of the economy. The military-led government seems undeterred by the ecommic crisis. Generals and congressmen are unstinting in pledging continuation of a political liberalization program. Political prisoners were granted amnesty, five parties were allowed in be established and censorship was eased.

When President Joao Figueiredo, who is closely identified with the reforms, suffered a heart attack in September, the military was quick to support his civilian deputy, Aureliano Chaves. The elections in November next year are the broadest since the armed forces seized power in 1964. Brazilians will choose both houses of Congress, the state governors and assemblies, and municipal officials. But the outcome of next November's election is clouded by Brazil's grim economic climate. The nnly real bright spots in the econnmy are a trade surplus and a decline in inflation. But the recession continues to weigh heavily on the live of Brazil's poor. Growth this year is likely to be the lowest for 40 years, increasing the problem of unemployment in cities, says economist Mauricio Dias, Central Bank President Carlos Langoni said economic growth this year would not be more than one percent, a sharp decline from

One of the country's major headaches is meeting payments of $16 billion to foreign creditors this year as repayments and interest charges on its foreign debt. Official figures show exports this year will nuly about $24 billion.

Gen. Figueiredo, who is due to resume office this week, is undaunted by the economic crisis. He aims to keep his promise to restore democratic freedoms, with elections set for 12 months from now despite the chances of an apposition victory.

The economic climate has made the outcome of the election difficult to predict because the slowdown has taken its beaviest toll no the poor. Rints broke not recently in the northeastern town of Salvador over rises in istry officials are more optimistic, predicting that the growth will be between one and three vinlence in land disputes.

World Bank helps

Rabat to tap shale oil deposit

LONDON, Nov. 16 (LOS) — The World Bank is about to lend Morocco between $15 million and $25 million for development of shale oil technology. This represents the World Bank's first involvement in an oil shale project and underlines growing foreign interest in Morocco's pioneer role in extracting heavy nil from sedimentary rock. It also marks out a path for energy development which could revolutionise the prospects of many Third World countries without conventional oil resources.

Morocco has few conventional oil reserves of its own, and has been badly hit by rising oil prices and an increasingly burdensome energy import bill. But it does claim to possess the world's fourth largest reserves of shale nil deposits (after the United States, Brazil and the Soviet Union).

The north-west African kingdom now plans to spend almost $1 billion over the next five years developing these reserves in the hope of achieving energy self-sufficiency by the end of the century.

These sums are certainly large for Mnrocco - whose economy has been sapped by the Sahara war and two years of drought. But American experts in Rabat are skeptical about both costs and time-scale. 'The Moroccans are nver-optimistic,' said one. 'They are unlikely to produce oil in commercial quantities before 1990. And the expense will be far higher than that so far projected - as we in the United States have found to our cost.'

The World Bank loan will cover only a fraction of the estimated cost. But it will be devoted to the vitally important job of assessing the technical feasibility of shale oil explnitation under Mnroccan conditions. A $13 million pilot plant will soon be con-structed at the Timahdit reserves, 100 kilometers south of Fez, which should become the nucleus of a large scale commercial complex to come nn stream by the mid-tures in order to 'sweat out' the crude oil. The Timahdit pilot plant is using the so-called T-3 (after Tangiers, Tarfaya and Timahdir where the largest reserves are located) which the Moroccans have adapted from various existing American systems with the help of Science Applications Incorporated of Colardo. Foreign oil companies from the United States and Western Europe are showing considerable interest, however. The Royal

Uganda raises interest rates

KAMPALA, Nov. 16 (AFP) — Uganda's Central Bank Monday announced sharp increases in interest rates and almost doubled the interest on treasury bills and deposits. The new rai tes are effective immediately. The bank rate rose from a minimum of 8 percent to ten percent Interest on treasury bills maturing in 35 days immped from six to eight percent and the interest rate on savings deposits went up from five to eight percent. The bank also raised ceiling on lending rates from 12 to 17 percent a year and doubled the interest on one-year term deposits from six to 12 percent. The rates for deposits of more than one year will be negotiable, bank officials said.

The interest rate hikes were apparently aimed at bringing the country's rates structure into line with international prime rates, and to reduce the money supply.

S. Africa to buy 6 U.S. boilers

JOHANNESBURG, Nov. 16 (AFP) -Combustion Engineering of the United States Monday hooked a contract worth 780 million rands ($850 million) from the South African Electricity Supply Commission (ESCOM) for six boilers, each rated 600 megawatts, to be installed at an east Transvaal power station.

The contract, for a plant provisionally coded "Station C', is the biggest ESCOM has placed so far with an American company. In August this year, ESCOM placed a contract with the West German consortium Stein Industrie-Evt for six boilers totaling 3,600 megawatts to be installed at Matimba plant in the north Transvaal.

Italy wilts on staff threat to expose secrets

ROME, Nov. 16 (R) - Italy's government, struggling to contain rampant inflation, has conceded a 30 percent pay rise to striking workers who threatened to reveal national

Strikers, mostly students and unemployed white collar workers waiting for state jobs, were taken on as temporary enumerators last month to distribute and collect forms for Italy's national census, taken every 20th

About $0,000 were signed nn by local authorities. The agreed rate of pay was 2,000 lire ($1.70) a form.

But only days after the Oct. 21 opening of the census campaign, enumerators in every major city went on strike demanding higher rates and permanent employment. Their strike, backed by threats to make public confidential census information, sparked fury in the press, deep embarrassment in the government, and fears that the entire census would be compromised.

Headlines in the conservative Milan daily Il Giornale branded the enumerators as sabnteurs, and a government spokesman confirmed press reports that ministers discussed bringing in troops to collect the completed forms. "The institutional, economic and social importance of the census is such a tn justify recourse to every administrative and contractual weapon to overcome unjustified obstructionism," the government said in an initial statement condemning the strike. But after an emergency meeting last week between Prime Minister Giovanni Spadolini and Interior Minister Virginlo Rotani, the government backed down under cover of a face-saving formula.

"The meeting bas confirmed the line already expressed by the prime minister," an official communione said. "There is no possibility of employing temporary personnel on a permanent basis, and any revision of the financial terms accepted by the enumerators a month ago must be justified by possible unforeseen reasons of hardship and by the taking on of additional work responsibility."

"It has, therefore, been decided to allow the National Statistics Institute to use its finances to provide funds for the local authorities to ... make extra payments to enumerators in cases where they do extra work," the communique said.

Freight market looks up

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AFP) - A growing feeling that this year's steep decline in freight rates had bottomed out, led to more demand on the freight market last week, noticeably in the Far East. Nevertheless there were still some soft pockets. Japanese charters were reported to be looking for Panama toonage (60/80,000 tons, capable of transittiog the Panama Canal) for prompt delivery and willing to pay firmer rates. Meanwhile, an unconfirmed $6,500 day was paid for a 73,350 tonner for a round voyage Japan-Australia-Japan, or $750

Spain, hit by drought, rations water

MADRID, Nov. 16 (AFP) - Strict water ratiooing has been ordered in 150 communities totaling 1,300,000 people io central and southern Spain, amid the worst drought cooditions in living mem-

The laod has become increasingly parched over the past few months, and the public has been ordered to draw water only a few hours a day. In some places water is available only one hour a week. Press reports Monday told of agricultural losses $1 hillion. The grain and olive crops are estimated 40 percent dowo oo the 1980 figure. Maoy dams supplying water to power stations have fallen to half their usual level, the "energy loss" being put at $600

Rural populations in the south are drilling new wells in the hope of getting water. Meanwhile, tankers are delivering it by more than in September.

The time charter section was much husier than usual, usually a sign that a rate rise is expected. Chinese charters were more active, booking at least six vessels from Canada and the United States. The South Koreans and the Brazilians were others prominently involved. But the few gains reported were balanced out by the lower rates elsewhere with the contiouing influx of new building, swelling the already existing tonnage surplus. The absence of any large-scale coal movements, often the hackbook of the winter trade, was a major factor hehiod the current depression. Demand for U.S. grain still offered regular employment, although rates varied quite sharply. The U.S/Europe grain rate (ofteo considered the harometer trade) moved sharply higher when $13.90 per ton was paid to a 55,000 toooer, a gain of $2.40 over end of October business.

On the other haod, the US/Japao grain rates eased with $21.50 paid for 30,000 tonners (down 50 ceots) and $21.25 for 50,000 toooers (down $1.50). The Great Lakes' husiness was much quieter as the end of season approached. But the U.S. Atlantic ports were busy, with trading, including several 25,000 ton grain shipments to Egypt at $24 a ton, $4 less than was pald to a prompt vessel two weeks before.

The U.S. Pacific/Japan grain rates moved up to $12.05 a ton for a 50,000 tonoer, until an unchanged $11 was paid.

Indian government charters maintained an active program for fertilizers, paying an unchanged $13 per ton out of Aqaba (Jor-

U.S. coal fixtures included a 55,000 tonner to Spain at $15.25 ton (np $4.75 on a month ago), but nothing was arranged to Japan. Sugar offered a little more variety to the list with a marginal fall in the Mauritius/UK rate, a marginal rise in the Brazil/USA rate, but a sharp drop in the South Africa/Japan trade.

Dollar rates forge ahead

JEDDAH, Nov. 16 — The American currency opened stronger than Europeao Monday exchanges. The only exception was against the British pound which rose to 1.9240 levels before falling back after profit - taking. Gold and silver continued to trade lethargically with gold prices fluctuating at $412 per ounce levels. Eurodollar interest rates fell back during the session. but exchange dealers attributed the dollar's stronger performance to the belief that U.S. dollar interest rate falls might slow down for the next few days until the American budget deficit shuation becomes clearer,

On the local markets, riyal deposits remained stable in quiet husiness that saw some slight firming in the short tenors.

Some profit - taking and belief that the dollar interest rate slide had eased for the time being brought the dollar up again on the European exchanges after it had closed Friday. Eurodollar deposit rates eased hy about 1/16 percent in the shorter tenors taking the one-month deposit rates for the dollar to 13 - 13 1's percent and the threemooth London dollar rate to 13 1/16-- 13 3/16 percent. On the whole, the money markets were quietly awaiting American reaction to further dollar moves when the New York markets open, and European dealers said little husiness was

The situation on the exchange markets was different with dealers scrambling for dollars in fairly beetic trading at times. The German mark which had elosed the weekend at a fairly comfortable level of 2.2170, saw the dollar rise to 2.2340 at some stages before Bundesbank dollar sales stabilized the rate at 2.2310 levels. The French franc lost 300 points to the dollar on Mondoy, trading at 5.6200 levels compared with Friday levels of 5.5900. The ven was also weaker at 227.40 levels compared to previous closings of 226.70. The only currency to rise against the dollar was the British pound which went up from Friday's 1.9125 to 1.9260 at one stage. Later profit taking pushed down the price to 1.9180 in London

The local markets reacted cautiously to the dollar's rises, with rival deposit rates hardly changing much from opening levels. The only noticeable difference was in the short dates where rates firmed by about 'a to 1/2 percent but even this was not evenly quoted over the market. Most dealers were willing to sit and watch the New York outcome like their European colleagues. Week - fixed rival rates were quoted at 6 - 7 percent, slightly up over Saturday levels of 5 - 6 percent, while the one-month hardly moved from opening levels of 7 1/2 - 8 percent quoted by brokers.

The one-year period was quoted at 12 % - 12 % percent, but little action was seen in the longer tenors. On the exchanges, spot dollar/riyal was quoted at 3,4190-05 hut later went up to 3,4200-10 on the dollar's strengthening in Europe.

Lakers nip Pacers in exciting match

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) — After a rocky start, all looks well in Hollywood again. The Loss Angeles Lakers won just one of their first four games, prompting reports of suspension on the team, with coach Paul Westhead's job reportedly in jeopardy.

But that was last week's news. The Lakers, 6-4, are now red hot, with their 124-123 double overtime victory over the Indiana Pacers Sunday night making it four straight wins and moving them within one game of the Portland Trail Blazers in the Pacific Divsion. The four victories, coming in the space of five days, were by a total of eight points.

"It was a hig, hig weekend," magic Johnson said. "We've getting it done offensively, and in the last couple of minutes, defensively. That's wby we've come out with some big wins."

In the only other National Basketball Association games played Sunday night, the San Antonio Spurs defeated the Blazers 110-105 and the Milwaukee Bucks nipped the Cleveland Cavaliers 98-96.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's free throw with eight seconds left in the second overtime period gave the Lakers the victory. Abdul-Jabbar's foul shot came 27 seconds after Los Angeles rookie Kevin MacKenna's 18-foot . jump shot tied the game at 123.

Los Angeles blew an eight-point lead in the final two minutes of regulation play. Indiana rookie Herb Williams hit a short jump shot with four seconds left to send the game into overtime tied 109-109.

In the first overtime, the Pacers took a four-point lead with three minutes left, but the Lakers got the final four points of the period on shots by Mitch Kupcbak and Johnson to send the game into a second overtime deadlocked at 115-115.

Spurs 110, Blazers 105: After ripping off seven straight victories to open the season, the Portland has now dropped three in a row. George Gervin led the Spurs with 23 points and the Blazers, playing without the injured Kermit Washington, Kelvin Ransey and Kevin Kunnert, were led by Jim Paxson's 26 points.

Bucks 98, Cavaliers 96: Sidney Moncrief scored 12 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter as Milwaukee wiped out a seven-point deficit."The team needed a spark," Moncrief said," And our outside shots weren't falling, so I just decided to challenge their hig guys. Our quickness just wore them down." James Silas led Cleveland with 21 points.

Windies score 226-run victory

Rick Darling toils in vain

ADELAIDE, Nov. 16 (AFP) — The West Indies opened their Australian tour with a crushing 226-run victory over South Australia at Adelaide Oval.

Set a mammoth 452 run target to win, the South Australians collapsed in their second innings for 225 after openers Rick Darling and Kim Harris had figured in a 141-run opening stand.

But once Darling (88) and Harris (49) lost their wickets, former Test batsman and South Australian captian David Hookes found it a hopeless task to even try and salvage a draw.

Darling's innings was a classic with eight boundaries included in his 154 stay at the crease, during which time he faced only 84 deliveries.

In front of Test selector Ray Lindwall, Darling must have enhanced his prospects of gaining selection in the Australian team to meet Pakistan in the opening Benson and Hedges World-series Cnp match in Melbourne on Sunday.

Harris, making his state debut, followed his first innings score of 19 in 153 minutes with a patient 49 in 170 minutes. However, once Darling had lost his wicket, the entire South Austrialian team collapsed for only another 84 runs in just 134 minutes.

Hokes played enterprisingly to reach 42 before being given out caught behind, but afterwards be claimed the ball had struck him on the shoulder.

The destroyer for the West Indies was "big bird" Joel Garner, who finished with five for 45 off 18 overs. Garner broke South Australia's middle-order when he obtained law decisions against Wayne Phillips (10), Peter Sleep (0) and Kevin Wright (1) within the space of six deliveries without conceding a

Lendl qualifies

NEW YORK, Nov. 16 (AP) - Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia and John McEnroe have qualified for the $400,000 eight-player Volvo Masters Tennis Championship which will be held in New York's Madison Square Garden beginning Jan. 13.

Tournament officials said leaders for the other six berths are Jose-Luis Clere Argentina, Jimmy Counors, Guillermo Vilas of Argentina, Eliot Teltscher, Roscoe Tanner and Yannick Noah of France.

Fined $700 for bad behavior

McEnroe faces three-week suspension

WEMBLEY, Nov. 16 (AP) - John McEnroe, fined $700 after court antics in the Benson and Hedges Championships, said Monday he will not appeal and will so through with an automatic three weeks suspension.

"I have lost every appeal I bave made," McEnroe said. "I feel frustrated and I will not appeal any more. McEnroe was toppled by Connors 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2, in a stormy final Sunday.

McEnore was disciplined for breaking a television microphone with his racket. The fines sent him above the stautory limit of $5,000, which under Grand Prix rules automatically puts him under suspension. He has ten days in which to appeal to the Professional Tennis Council, otherwise the ban will come into operation.

McEnroe said he believes a Grand Prix suspension would leave him free to play for the United States against Argentina in the Davis Cup final at Cincinnati, Ohio, December 11-13.

"The Davis Cup rules say I must he in good standing with my national associa-tion," McEuroe said. "I am in good standing." But tennis officials at the Wembley arena said that he was wrong and that the ban would apply to the Davis Cup.

McEnroe would not admit the penalties slapped on him Sunday were deserved. "I hit my racket into the microphone and my strings broke," be said. "That's what I was fined for. It's absurd.

Connors defended MeEnore, Both in a public interview on court at the presentation ceremony and a press conference later. He said the players were subject to too many rules and restrictions." If they gave us a little more rein, These things might not happen," Counors said. "The rules have got the players frustrated."

Connors added that disciplinary measures have little effect on the millionaires of the tennis courts anyway. "You fine us, and the fines don't matter," connors said. You can suspend us, and we'll make more moneey than if we played in the tournaments. They could put us out of the game, and then the game would suffer."

The Grand Prix suspension rule applies to accumulated fines for "minor offenses." The fines that have mounted up against McEnroe do not include one of $5,000 for "aggravating behavior" during his triumph at Wimbledon last summer.

Wimbledon recommended $10,000 and the Professional Tennis Council halved it. McEnroe filed an appeal, which is to be considered by an independent three-man tribunal in New York next Friday. "I will be in Florida," McEnroe said. "I don't have to attend the bearing. I'm leaving it to my lawvers."

He has nine days of exhibition tennis lined up, and that will not be affected by any suspension. "I'm tired, and I would he quite happy not to play tennis again until the Masters tournament in New York in January." MeEnroe said.

McEnroe had won the Wembley title three years in a row and bad won 19 straight matches in this tonrnament until Connors

Greenwood delays naming World Cup soccer squad

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AP) - England manager Ron Greenwood is expected to name his most experienced team to play Hungary in the important World Cup Group Four qualifying match as Wembley Stadium

Wednesday night. The coutest is the most vital for England's national soccer team for more than a decade. England needs to win or draw to qualify for the World Cup finals. A defeat would allow Romania qualify for the finals in Spain next year and leave England on the sidelines for the third successive time.

England, the 1966 winners, qualified for the 1970 World Cup as holders, but failed to win through in both 1974 and 1978. Another let-down would have a disastrous effect on the already falling domestic attendances, officials

For a match that bas attracted nationwide interest and buge media publicity, Greenwood is expected to stick with his loyal and experienced players like Dave Watson, Mick Mills and Trevor Brooking.

Centerbalf Watsoo bas not played a first team match for five weeks, Mills is struggling to find his form and Brooking bas only recently recovered from injury, but Greenwood has hinted that all three will play.

The England manager was expected to name his line-up Monday morning, hut delayed his decision until Tuesday. Meanwhile, Northern Ireland soccer captain Martin O' Neill declared himself a doubtful starter for a match he describes as one of the most important of his career.

Manchester City midfield player O' Neill is suffering from a hamstring injury and is likely to miss Northern Ireland's World Cup Group Six qualifying match in Belfast.

Northern Ireland needs only to draw the match to join Scotland, which already has qualified from Group Six, in the World Cup finals in Spain next year.

O'Neill desperately wants to play hut admitted: "I am running out of time, It's the biggest game we bave ever had, so I want to be sure. If I had another week there would be oo problem, but I will need to test in Tuesday,"

Northern Ireland's other two injury doubts, Monday declared themselves fit. Manager Billy Bingham is confident the Irish will get the result they need and qualify for the finals for the first time since 1958. "I get the same feeling as I felt before last month's draw against Scotland," Bingham said. "The players are ready to get the job done. I have to steady them down."

Canada holds Mexico in lackluster tie

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras, Nov. 16(R) - Canada and Mexico drew 1-1 Sunday to stay in contention for a place in the 1982 World Cup Soccer finals, But it was a result that most benefitted host-nation Honduras, leaders of the six-nation North and Central America and Caribbean (CONCACAF) playoffs which will send two teams to the finals in Spain.

Honduras, with a maximum six points from three matches, are now virtually assured of a place in the final with Mexico or Canada, each with four points from as many games, likely to accompany them. Mexico still have to play Hooduras while Canada have what appears an easier final game against Cuba. Cuha-beat Haiti 2-0 earlier hut it was their first win in four matches. Haiti still have not won a match and are bostom of the playoff group which also includes El Salvador.

Canada and Mexico have now drawn three times in qualifying matches having failed to produce a clearcut result in two preliminary group meetings last year. The Mexicans scored first in the dull match Sunday through Castro after 29 minutes. Bridge equalized in the 58th minute. In Kenitra, Morocco, Cameroun looked certain to join Algeria as Africa's representatives in the World Cup finals after beating Morocco 2-0 in a qualifying match Sunday.

A 15th-minute penalty by Roger Milla and a goal 10 minutes later by Jean-Pierre Tokoto seeured Cameroun's victory in the first leg of the African zone semi-final tie.

Algeria, who like Cameroun have not previously appeared in the World Cup finals, elinched their place with a 4-1 aggregate victory over Nigeria last month in the other sem-

Cameroun were superior in every way, with their greater fitness perhaps the most decisive factor. After Milla's early penalty, Cameroun virtually ended the home team's chances of a recovery when Tokoto fired home the second goal from 12 meters.

Kenya upset former champions Malawi 1-0 in a preliminary Group One match in the East and Central Africa Challenge Soccer Cup in Dar-Es-Salam.

The incideot occurred wheo Lillee swung his left foot and appeared to make contact. with Miandad's left thigh. The Pakistani swung round sharply and brandished his bat as if to strike Lillee, but umpire Tony Crafter stepped in to keep them apart.

But the last may not bave been heard of the affair. Monday night Phil Riding, chairman of the Australian cricket Board said: "The Board is very interested in the report and will examine the matter."

Late Mouday night Australian captain Greg Chappell said that he coodemned Lillee for retaliating but found that the fast bowler had been goaded into kicking Miandad.

"If we found that Dennis was the instigator

we would have rubbed him out," There are many who are making it appear that Deonis is the only one who has done anything in this game," Chappell said.

"It was absolutely terrible ... It's just not cricket ... it's just oot done," Ijaz Butt the Pakistani said., "Action should be taken and it is up to the Australian Board who bave a code of ethics, 1 believe."

It is not difficult to defeat four spades if you see all 52 cards. West leads his singleton diamond and East returns a diamond after taking the ace... West ruffs, returns a heart to East's ace, and ruffs another diamond to put the contract

First comes the question of West's opening lead: With such a poor hand facing a partner who passed as dealer, West should reason that there is no possibility of stopping four spades on high-card strength alone, and that the only real chance lies in obtaining diamond ruffs. Accordingly, he should lead a diamond. Second, when East wins the ace, he should not play the ace of bearts before returning a diamond. If he falls into this error, South makes the contract

Also, in returning a diamond at trick two, East must not lead any old diamond - he should lead his highest diamond, the nine. In selecting this card, East applies the suit-direction convention to guide West to a heart play next, rather than a club.

The high-diamond return directs West to lead the higher-ranking suit, as between hearts and clubs. If East had held the ace of chibs instead of the ace of hearts, he would have returned the deuce of diamonds to direct the lowsuit return of a club. When West ruffs the diamond at trick two, he therefore returns a heart. Clear thinking and close cooperation enable East-West to find the right defense as if guided by radar. They don't

Big hunt launched for IRA arsenal

LONDON, Nov. 16 (Agencies) - Scotland Yard Monday began an extensive search for 500 pounds (227 kgs) of Irish Republican Army explosives hidden in the British capital, police announced.

All police leave in the capital was canceled as officers and bomb-sniffing dogs started combing more than 300,001 lockup garages and other huildings.

Scotland Yard Deputy Assistant Commissioner George Rushbrook told a news conference the gelignite cache, believed to be stashed by IRA guerrillas, was sufficient to make 50 bombs. Three persons have been killed and 37 injured in bomb attacks in London in the past six weeks. Police have made no arrests. In Oxford, Thames Valley police chief Peter Imbert said officers from his town and three countries hordering London have joined the search. In London, Rushhrook told reporters:

"There is an Irish terrorist group operating in London and we have strong grounds to believe they have access to something like 500 pounds of explosive material." The search for the IRA arsenal is the largest of its type ever launched in the capital and surrounding counties, Rushbrook said. He said police believe the explosives, which would fill 14 large suitcases, were hidden in one huilding. Two civilians were killed Oct. 10 when a nail bomb blasted a busload of Irish guards. A week later a senior British officer, Lt. Gen. Steuart Pringle, commandant of the Royal Marines, was maimed in a car bomb blast outside his London home, and on Oct. 26 a bomb disposal expert was killed by a homb planted in a fast food store in the London's West end.

The mainly Roman Catbolic IRA has claimed responsibility for the attacks as part of its campaign to oust Britain from Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland and reunite it with the Republic of Ireland.

In Belfast, Protestant legislators, denouncing British pleas to "keep calm," announced Monday they will set up vigilante-type groups unless Britain cracks down on the outlawed

"We have a plan for mutual protection, the establishment of an effective communications network," James Molyneaux, leader of Northern Ireland's largest Protestant party, the official Unionist Party, told a news conference." We have invited the government to do that, but if the government doesn't do it, it will be done anyway."

Molyneaux summoned reporters amid growing Protestant anger following Saturday's killing in Belfast of a Protestant member of the British Parliament, Robert Bradford, by IRA guerrillas.

Molyneaux, flanked by other Protestant leaders, described Britain's Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior as "incompetent and foolish."

the law-ahiding people of Northern Ireland have been brought to boiling point by Mr. Prior's insulting request to keep calm while the IRA hutcher us."

Prior appealed Sunday to Protestants not to take the law into their own hands to avenge the murder of Bradford.

Prior said in a radio interview that the IRA was determined to cause the maximum amount of civil unrest and urged everyooe to remain calm and not be provoked.

The Dublin-hased president of the Methodist church in Ireland, the Rev. Ernest Gallagher, also called for moderation. "We should not allow ourselves, any of us, to he trapped in a vicious circle of retaliation and counterretaliation," he said in a sermon in a Belfast church.

Margaret, Schmidt to discuss unity

LONDON, Nov. 16 (AFP) — A West German-Italian move to strengthen European unity, a reform of European economic Community agricultural policy and the EEC budget will be the focal points of talks here Tuesday and Wednesday hetween West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, Britisb officials said Monday.

The second meeting this year between the two heads of government — the first took place at Chequers, Mrs. Thatcher's official country retreat, last May 1 and 2 - also should stress the increased need for closer links hetween Bonn. London and Paris, the officials said.

Closer links can promote cooperation oo budget reform and joint agriculture policy, the officials noted.

At the previous meeting, which followed the election of President Francois Mitterrand io France, fears were expressed that Paris might modify its foreign policy, particularly concerning NATO and East-West relations, but Whitehall sources Monday noted that this was not the case.

Bodard gets Goncourt prize

W. German, Indian ministers meet

ary season was opened Monday with the award of the prestigious 79th Goncourt prize to 67-year-old Lucieo Bodard, a noted writer on the Far East, for his novel Anne -Marie.

Bodard is well-known in France as a leading foreign correspondent who spent decades in the Far East and has written numerous books on Indochina and China under Mao Tse-tung.

The Goncouri guarantees sales of at least 250,000 copies, and is considered the only French literary prize able to change an author's life overnight. The Goncourt prize itself is worth a mere lunch and 50 Francs (ahout $9).

His winning novel describes his life when his mother, the Anne-Marie of the title, brought him back to be educated in France while his father remained at his post in China as a French coosul.

There have been criticisms this year, as in previous years, that the 10 members of the jury are hiased in favor of the three main French publishers - Gallimard, Grasset and Le Seuil. Eight out of the past 10 Gonco urt prizes have gone to their authors. Bodard won the "Interallie" literary prize ln 1973 for his work Monsieur le Con sul about his uphringing in China.

Bodard was destined for the French diplomatic corps like his father, but became a journalist and was for several decades one of France's best-known roving foreign correspondents.

He covered the war in Induchina and wrote three books on it, followed by two books on the China of Man Tse-tung. Later be covered the war in Algeria and wrote a book on the massacre of Indians in Brazil

His mother brought him back to France while his father remained as a consul in China, and Bodard describes how he found it difficult to become acclimatized to life in the West after being spoiled by the ease of life in the Far East.

The novel Anne -Marie has a trenchant description of his experience in a hoarding school and then Paris in the "Mad 20s." Meanwhile the Renaudot literary prize

Despite their differences over questions concerning steel and fishing, Bonn and London appeared to he in complete agreement on three issues. They were:

— A ceiling on the EEC budget contributions of Britain and West Germany, the community's two leading financial backers. - A reform of joint agricultural policies, which have generally cost the EEC about 70 percent of its budget outlays. - A maintaining of the EEC financial package to one percent of the 10 member nations' value-added tax receipts.

But observers meanwhile stressed that the West German financial burden had become beavier, while the British appeared to be paying less, both because of a drop in the value of the pound and because of better management of the agricultural policies.

EEC Commission President Gaston Thorn said Friday, after talks with Mrs. Thatcher, that the net British contribution to the European hudget would amount to 260 million pounds ($468 million), about a third of the figure that had been originally proposed and rejected by the British prime minister.

But this happy development for Britain appeared highly unlikely to soften Mrs. Thatcher's resolve to seek a detailed reform of the EEC hudget, in hopes of finding a permanent solution acceptable to all member nations.

The British were, however, apparently not underestimating the difficulties they faced in reaching such an understanding. Belgium, Denmark, Luxembourg and the Netherlands have expressed opposition to any farreaching changes and France has also shown some reluctance.

Policemen hurt in Frankfurt riot

FRANKFURT, West Germany, Nov. 16 (AFP) - A total of 106 police personnel were injured in clashes at Frankfurt airport with tens of thousands of ecologists demonstrating against a project to clear nearby forest land to huild a new runway, official sources indicated Monday. About 100 demonstrators were arrested.

The violence started shortly after 12:30 P.M. Sunday, the deadline which the ecologists had set for the Hesse state to call a halt to the runway project pending a referendum.

The demonstrators built barricades oo the main access roads to the airport, setting fire to some of them. Nearby at the 250-bectare site of the projected runway police fought the ecologists with tear gas and water cannon. Air traffic was not interrupted, the sources

Union leaders arrive

Crucial Polish parleys on reforms begin today

WARSAW, Nov. 16 (AFP) — Leaders of Poland's free trade union federation Solidarity arrived here Monday to prepare for crucial negotiations with a government commission Tuesday on a gamut of amhitions and extensive reforms which the union is determined to see carried out.

At Tuesday's negotiations, which in contrast to past occasions have oot been called under pressure of events. Solidarity's nhjectives will be five fold:

-To obtain regular access to the government-controlled news media. -To set up machinery for monitoring the government's measures and projects. -To work out a broad program of economic reform.

-To overhaul the present mode of electing municipal and regional councils. - To deal with problems in the private agriculture sector. These matters have at one time or another been the object of fruitless negotiations, with Soldarity calling for sweeping reforms and the government battling to preserve the party's leadership role in the country's affairs and avoid any major changes. However, the prospects of progress Tuesday look brighter after the Nov. 4 meeting between Solidarity leader Lech Walesa, Roman Catholic primate Josef Glemp, and Prime Minister Wojciech Jaruzelski, who is also first secretary of the Polish Communist

Gen. Jaruzelski agreed then to oegotiate on all important issues raised by Solidarity, on the understanding that the authority of the regime was not questioned, while Walesa later commented that he was "prudently

EDWARDS AIR BASE, California, Nov. 16 (R) - U.S. space officials, undaunted by having to bring down the Columbia space sbuttle nearly three days ahead of schedule, say they plan to launch the craft again in Columbia, which stayed in space only 54

He said the shuttle, with astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly abroad, would have remaioed in orbit for full five days in reasonable safety. "But we would have had to take some drastic steps if we had lost another fuel generator," he added. The 75-ton sbuttle had three generators.
